The report was prepared for the Subic Bay Metropolitan Authority (SBMA) as part of the Protected Area Management Plan Project by the staff of URS Corporation. Funding was provided under a loan from the Japan Bank for International Cooperation. Many groups and individuals contributed to the success of the report; a few are mentioned below.

SBMA Chairman Felicito Payumo recognized the importance of environmental protection to the development of Subic Bay Freeport Zone and provided ongoing support for development of this plan. We also acknowledge the support of Lilia Alcazar, Head of the Protected Area Division of the SBMA Ecology Center and her entire division, who provided direction and technical support throughout the project. Mr. Michael Musngi, head of the Ecology Center at the beginning of the project in 1999 and Ms. Amethya Dela Llana-Concepcion who succeeded him both provided guidance and assistance.

The Department of Environment and Natural Resources reviewed early drafts of the plan and provided advice at several stages of plan development.

Sam Stier and Tammy Mildenstein, Peace Corps workers with the World Wildlife Fund, reviewed portions of the plan, participated in workshops, and provided information on giant fruit bats. They also shared many valuable insights and provided suggestions for protecting and restoring the ecosystems at Subic Bay.

We especially thank the Aeta of Pastolan for their vision and support of this project and for helping to make the plan consistent with their goals for protecting the natural environment at Subic Bay. We also thank Barangay Captain Bonifacio Florentino for his eloquent advocacy of the plan during all five of the project consultation workshops.

Over 100 stakeholders, including representatives of local government units, NGOs, indigenous communities, investors, and various departments of the SBMA who attended the five consultation workshops. These individuals actively participated in plan development and in developing a common vision for the Subic Bay Protected Area.

Locators and local investors, particularly Ocean Adventure, supported the protection and sustainable management of lands and waters surrounding their facilities through conservation education, development of alternative livelihoods and sustainable management of fisheries in the bay. Groups such as the Coast Guard Auxiliary and Subic Bay Chamber of Commerce have given their time to support enforcement and management of bay resources. Such efforts by members of the private sector are critical to the success of the Subic Bay Protected Area Management Plan.
